THE THEATERS

"The Girl and the Stampede," which is to appear Saturday at the Robinson Grand, is said to be similar to "The Virginian," "The Squaw Man" and "The Girl of the Golden West." It comes here, complete in scenic detail and with the same cast which created favorable comment in the cities.

"Peg O' My Heart" Laurette Taylor's phenomenal New York success which will be the attraction at the Robinson Grand Tuesday December 9, depicts the adventures of a young Irish girl brought up in poverty and introduced suddenly to addresse in a temporary sojourn in the home of wealthy English relatives, she encounters sharp contrasts of character (temperament and manner) which produce humorous situations. The play is in three acts, all of which are laid in the living room of Regal Villa, England. The cast will be headed by Miss Peggy O'Neil.

Julia Hanchett recently made a hit in a special engagement with the Percy Howell stock company in Cleveland.

The extent of the popularity of that irreplaceable pair of funmakers, John E. Brennan and Ruth Roland, can be judged from the contents of a letter bearing the postmark of Geneva, Switzerland, received at the Kalem offices recently. The writer declares that the announcement to the effect that a picture featuring Mr. Brennan and Miss Roland is to be shown at one of the theatres, is the signal for an unusually large attendance. These performers will shortly be seen in a rollicking new farce, "General Banko's Victory."

Director Edward J. Le Saint, of The Selig Force in Los Angeles, in carrying out a scene of feud life in the Tennessee Mountains, in climax showing the reconciliation of two sworn enemies, had the process of transfusion of blood, an incident required by the accuracy of the author, which was carried on under the scientific direction of a physician who O. K'd the dangerous experiment.

Mildred Morris, daughter of the late Felix Morris, is playing the heroine in "What Happened to Mary?"

Charles Frohman is to make a revival of Sardon's famous play, "Diplomacy," in this country after its revival in London.

The production here at Ford's in Baltimore of William Collier's new play, "A Little Water On the Side," will be the premiere. The play is by Mr. Collier and Grant Stewart.

"Janet of the Dunes, from the novel of Harriet T. Comstock, is the offering today at the Lyceum theatre. The scenes of the play are laid upon the eastern end of Long Island where Devant, a New Yorker, is captivated by a charming country girl whom he marries and takes to the city. Here she is unhappy and we find her fading until Devant grows tired of her and deserts her. After a long wait, she returns to her Long Island home where she, dies, leaving her little daughter in the care of Captain Billy. The little girl, Janet, grows up as care free as the wind under the kindly guidance of the faithful old captain. One day she finds a secret entrance to one of the summer cottages where she is surprised by the owner, Devant. They do not know each other but Devant becomes interested in her. An artist friend of his paints Janet and falls in love with her. He does not realize it, however, until Janet dismisses him after a friend of his has made several cutting remarks about her. Then he returns from the city and declares his love while the surf roars about them. A photograph reveals Janet's identity to Devant and, filled with remorse for his cruelty to the mother, he resolves that he will make atonement to the daughter.

"The Fatal Wedding" at the Lyceum theatre last night drew a large and pleased audience. Little Miss Wallace as the Little Mother is easily the star of this play. She is charming in the character while the comedy in the hands of Dorothy Wallace and Otto Hittner kept the audience in laughter. Tonight is amateur night and at least five are expected to try for the three prizes offered.

A new recruit to the vaudeville stage is a man who sung himself out of a Western penitentiary by his fine voice. He got permission while in prison to sing before a congregation and 4,000 German music lovers united in a petition for his pardon.
